Recent data suggests there is skyrocketing demand for lawyers looking to make a career change. Honigman LLP and the FBA will host a virtual panel discussion to explore a discrete segment of the legal market: former government lawyers who successfully transitioned to private practice. The Panelists will discuss their career path, journey to private practice, and considerations for lawyers looking to transition their practice from public to private or from private to public. The panel will further explore how their experiences working on the inside has helped to shape their practice on the outside.
