Matthew Radler is a labor and employment attorney who focuses his practice on wage and hour matters and assists in litigating noncompete, trade secret and employment dispute matters.

- Counsels clients through various stages of pretrial litigation on employment discrimination, retaliation, and whistleblower cases, including settlement, pleadings, discovery, and summary judgment
- Assists in litigating individual plaintiff and collective action wage and hour disputes under federal and state laws
- Drafts and reviews employment agreements and related contracts, including non-compete and separation agreements
- Assists in counseling clients on compliance with an array of federal, state and municipal laws governing wages, working conditions, civil rights, and enforcement of restrictive covenants

Professional Affiliations
State Bar of Michigan
Oakland County Bar Association

News & Resources

Publications
- Ethical Duties and Standards in Disqualifying, Retaining, and Communicating with Expert Witnesses (2013)
  Co-author
  ABA's The Brief (Vol. 43, 2013)
  80 Geo. Wash. L. Rev. 1209
Amending the EEOC’s Disability Discrimination Regulations to Protect Employees with Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder (2012)
80 Geo. Wash. L. Rev. 1546

Blogs

Restoring Balance: Supreme Court Upholds Class Action Waivers in Employment Arbitration Agreements, Providing Employers with Some Relief from Rampant Wage and Hour Class Litigation May 23, 2018

Policy Innovation or Pandora’s Box? The Department of Labor Considers Revising Pay Calculations in 2018 Regulatory Agenda May 17, 2018

Department of Labor Issues New Opinion Letters, Reversing Obama-Era Policy April 17, 2018

After Cold Reception from Appellate Courts, DOL Rescinds Internship Enforcement Guidance and Adopts “Primary Beneficiary” Test January 10, 2018

A Return to the “Direct Control” Standard for Joint Employers June 7, 2017

Federal Court Extends Deadline in Appeal of FLSA Amended Overtime Regulations While Government Decides Whether to Press Case or Drop It February 27, 2017

Seventh Circuit Invalidates Class Action Waivers and Sets the Stage for a Supreme Court Battle June 6, 2016

Major revisions to federal overtime exemptions are one step closer to taking effect, and sooner than you may have expected March 18, 2016

2016 Ushers in a Patchwork of New Minimum Wage Laws January 21, 2016

Honors

Michigan Super Lawyers, Recognized as a Rising Star, 2019

Prior Employment

Bernabei & Wachtel, PLLC, Associate, 2012-2015